Christina Finch

Federal Emergency Management Agency, National Hurricane Program Manager

Christina Finch has been serving the National Hurricane conference for two years, joining the planning and Topic committees for the 2021 conference in New Orleans, LA. Following the virtual conference in 2020, Christina noted this as an incredible opportunity to provide a forum to continue the dialogue and learn about the exciting work within the hurricane field. Most appreciated, is the history and acknowledgement of colleagues recognized for their outstanding service and the opportunity to reflect and honor the history of these pivotal professionals.

“The National Hurricane Program provides data, tools and technical assistance to help emergency managers make informed decisions; I serve because I’m passionate about supporting other emergency managers with the information and tools they need to make difficult decisions and serve their communities, from hurricane readiness to response.”
